Our responsibilities under those standards are further described in the Auditor's Responsibilities for the Audit of the disclosed Annual Accounting (Financial) Statements section of this report. We are independent of the audited entity in accordance with Auditors and Audit Organizations Independence Regulations and Code of Professional Ethics of Auditors compliant with the International Code of Ethics for Professional Accountants (including International Independence Standards) issued by the International Ethics Standards Board for Professional Accountants, and we have fulfilled other responsibilities in accordance with these professional ethics requirements. We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our opinion.

Important circumstances - preparation principles

The disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements have been prepared in order to represent the financial standing and income state of "Surgutneftegas" Public Joint Stock Company, the disclosure of which is not detrimental to "Surgutneftegas" Public Joint Stock Company and (or) its counterparties. Our opinion on the disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements does not cover other information and we do not express any form of assurance conclusion thereon.

In connection with our audit of the disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements, our responsibility is to study other information and, in doing so, consider whether the other information is materially inconsistent with the disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements or our knowledge obtained in the audit and otherwise appears to be materially misstated. If, based on the work we have performed, we conclude that there is a material misstatement of such other information, we are required to report that fact. We have nothing to report in this regard.

Responsibilities of the management and the members of the Board of Directors of the audited entity for the disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements

The management is responsible for the preparation of these disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements that give a true and fair view in accordance with the rules for the preparation of accounting (financial) statements established in the Russian Federation and for such internal control as the management deems necessary for the preparation of disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements that are free from any material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

In preparing the disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements, the management is responsible for assessing the audited entity’s ability to continue as a going concern, disclosing, as applicable, matters related to the going concern and using the going concern assumption basis of accounting unless the management either intends to liquidate the audited entity or to cease operations, or has no realistic alternative but to do so.

The members of the Board of Directors are responsible for the supervision over preparation of the disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements of the audited entity.

Auditor’s responsibilities for the audit of the disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements

Our objectives are to obtain reasonable assurance of whether the disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error, and to issue an auditor’s report that includes our opinion. Reasonable assurance is a high level of assurance, but is not a guarantee that an audit conducted in accordance with ISA will always detect a material misstatement when it exists. Misstatements can arise from fraud or error and are considered material if, individually or in the aggregate, they could reasonably be expected to influence the economic decisions of the users taken on the basis of these disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements.

As part of the audit in accordance with ISA, we exercise professional judgement and maintain professional scepticism throughout the audit. We also:

- a) identify and assess the risks of material misstatement of the disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements, whether due to fraud or error, design and perform audit procedures responsive to those risks, and obtain audit evidence that is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our opinion. The risk of not detecting a material misstatement resulting from fraud is higher than one resulting from error, as fraud may involve collusion, forgery, intentional omissions, misrepresentations, or the override of internal control;

- b) obtain an understanding of internal control relevant to the audit in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the efficiency of the audited entity's internal control;
- c) evaluate the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of accounting estimates calculated by the management of the audited entity and related disclosures;
- d) conclude on the appropriateness of the use by the management of the audited entity of the going concern assumption and, based on the audit evidence obtained, whether a material uncertainty exists related to events or conditions that may cast significant doubt on the audited entity's ability to continue as a going concern. If we conclude that a material uncertainty exists, we are required to draw attention in our auditor's report to the related disclosures in the disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements or, if such disclosures are inadequate, to modify our opinion. Our conclusions are based on the audit evidence obtained up to the date of our auditor's report. However, future events or conditions may cause the audited entity to cease to continue as a going concern;
- e) evaluate the overall presentation, structure and content of the disclosed annual accounting (financial) statements, including the disclosures, and whether the annual accounting (financial) statements represent the underlying transactions and events in a manner that achieves fair presentation.

We communicate information to the members of the Board of Directors of an audited entity about, among other matters, the planned scope and timing of the audit and significant audit findings, including any significant deficiencies in internal control that we identify during our audit.

We also provide the members of the Board of Directors of an audited entity with a statement that we have complied with all relevant ethical requirements regarding independence, and communicated to them about all relationships and other matters that may be reasonably thought to bear on the auditor's independence, and where applicable, related safeguards.
